THE WONDROUS GIFT IS GIVEN

The Christmas Joy Offering celebrates the coming of Jesus Christ, the “wondrous gift” of God with us. Jesus arrived in a humble stable in small and insignificant Bethlehem, to lead and teach in truth and love, and bring about God’s salvation to the world. What a “wondrous gift” indeed! This was a gift so profound that the only response was the bringing of more gifts; the Magi arrived with gold, frankincense, and myrrh to honor the Christ child.

Devoted and caring leaders have led many of us in the way of Christ. They have been church workers equipping us to respond to the grace we have known in Jesus Christ, and they have been God’s gifts among us. As we celebrate Christ’s coming, and think of the profound impact these individuals have had on us, the Christmas Joy Offering provides a way for us to offer a gift in response. Gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering will raise up leaders from small places that are too often overlooked by the church. The historically Presbyterian racial ethnic schools were founded to educate emerging leaders from underrepresented groups so leadership in the church would better reflect the diversity of God’s people.

Half of the Christmas Joy Offering supports the continued ministry of educating and forming Christian leaders. The other half of the Offering honors those leaders who serve and have served us well. Through the Assistance Program of the Board of Pensions, current and retired church workers who experience need because of tragedy, health concerns, or financial hardship can receive assistance from the church they have served so well.

In gratitude to God for the wondrous gift of Jesus, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) invites congregations to join this celebration of God’s presence with us by supporting those in need of help and hope.

Thank you for your support of this life-changing offering.
Please encourage your congregants to give generously.

MINUTE FOR MISSION

Time does not erase family's gratitude for Board of Pensions assistance program

Jim Irwin was looking forward to college graduation and medical school when he received news of his father's death on a cold February day in 1962. Jim's father, Rev. James Walter Irwin, had a fatal heart attack at the age of 58.

Jim's parents had raised five sons on the modest salary Rev. Irwin earned serving small rural parishes in Illinois, Pennsylvania, California, Missouri, and Kansas. When their father died, three of Jim's brothers were pursuing either undergraduate or advanced degrees, while another had just begun his pastoral career. Their mother, Nell, was left with limited financial resources and would soon need a place to live. Mrs. Irwin suffered from Parkinson's disease, which made the situation even more challenging.

The congregation Rev. Irwin had served paid her his salary for a year and allowed her to live in the manse for several months. She and her youngest son, then a college junior, moved into a rental house where she lived until he graduated, when Mrs. Irwin again found herself in need of housing. Her anxiety about being able to afford a decent dwelling was relieved thanks to assistance from the PC(USA)'s Board of Pensions. The Board provided a monthly housing grant that enabled her to live at Sterling Presbyterian Manor in Sterling, Kansas, until her death in 1979.

Had it not been for the assistance, Jim says he and his brothers "would have figured something out." Yet at the time of their father's death, none was in a position to offer much help.

The Board of Pensions, using gifts from the Christmas Joy Offering, continues to assist current and retired church servants and their families who find themselves in challenging financial circumstances. The Board receives half of the Offering to provide this assistance, while the other half goes to Presbyterian-related racial ethnic schools.

Jim finished medical school and chose surgery as his specialty. His brothers completed their educations and entered successful careers as well. Their gratitude for the assistance the Board of Pensions provided their mother continues.

Jim and his wife, Francie, faithfully support the Christmas Joy Offering through their congregation, First Presbyterian Church in Othello, Washington. When Jim gives, he remembers the help his mother received.

"The help my mom received was invaluable," Jim says. "We've always supported the Christmas Joy Offering because it contributes to the well-being of those who have made a life decision to serve the church. It helps them not to have to choose between housing and food."

Because of gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering, fewer people have to make such difficult choices. Gifts to the Offering help current and retired church workers and their families navigate difficult financial circumstances. Your gift will make a difference.

LET US PRAY:

Gracious God, we give thanks for people who faithfully serve your church. Sustain them in times of celebration and in times of struggle. Help us support those whom you have called into your service. Amen.

MINUTE FOR MISSION

Seeking safety from violence, Pan American alum found the challenge of God's call

Monika Ruiz's vocational aspirations paint a portrait of holistic Christian commitment. This college sophomore wants to serve as a nurse in international mission, but her dreams for the future don't stop with taking care of physical needs. Monika would like to tend spiritual needs through pastoral ministry in a developing country. She is concerned about justice for neglected people and communities around the world, and she envisions starting an advocacy organization that works on their behalf.

Her call to service was nurtured as a high school student at the Presbyterian Pan American School in Kingsville, Texas, an institution you help support with your gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering. "Throughout my three years at Pan Am, I learned to trust God more, and through my peers and the staff there, I saw the gifts of love and service put to work," Monika says.

Monika came to Pan American from a community in Mexico where drug cartels hold tremendous sway, where some days she was unable even to attend school due to drug trafficking and violence. At Pan American, she not only found a safe and caring environment, but also hit her stride academically and learned lessons beyond the classroom. "Pan American gave me an opportunity that I would not have had in my country," Monika says. "I not only learned English and how to excel in academics, but my experience prepared me for college and for life."

Monika graduated as salutatorian of her 2015 class. She received a scholarship to another Presbyterian-related school, Schreiner University in Kerrville, Texas, where she is a nursing student. She anticipates enrolling at Austin Theological Seminary after she completes her bachelor's degree.

Pan American's diverse student body gave Monika a glimpse of the world she hopes to serve. "One of the things I will always be thankful for are the friendships I made there. Being around people from other countries and cultures made my high school education unique and very rich," Monika says.

Gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering help Presbyterian racial ethnic schools provide life-changing experiences for students like Monika. Half of the receipts go to Presbyterian-related racial ethnic schools and the other half provides assistance for current and retired church workers and their families who are in need.

Presbyterian racial ethnic schools afford opportunities that students like Monika might not otherwise be able to experience. "Without a doubt, attending the Presbyterian Pan American School has been one of the greatest blessings in my life," Monika says. "Without that opportunity, I would not be who I am or where I am now."

Your gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering will help more students like Monika develop their gifts for effective service to the church and the world.

LET US PRAY:

Encouraging God, we give thanks for Presbyterian racial ethnic schools and the dreams they inspire in students who otherwise might never have dared to dream. Help them claim their giftedness and sustain faculty and staff members as they point students toward higher plateaus of learning, devotion, and service. Amen.

Christmas Joy gifts help pastor overcome the challenges of limited hearing

Rosie, a lovable Australian labradoodle, provides more than companionship to Rev. Wendy McAninch: She also alerts her to important sounds that Wendy is unable to hear.

Wendy has been gradually losing her hearing for about 20 years and has been helped by hearing aids, but continues to experience tinnitus, a chronic ringing in her ears. She's trained herself to tune out the pesky ringing, but that keeps her from hearing things like doorbells, alarm clocks, and timers.

Yet Rosie hears these sounds and informs Wendy by giving her a gentle nudge. Wendy no longer has to worry about not hearing a doorbell that signals a friend's visit, an alarm that notifies her it's time for medication, or a kitchen timer that keeps her from burning her dinner.

Wendy would not enjoy Rosie's services and this improved quality of life without generous gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering. Offering receipts helped pay for Rosie's training, an expensive endeavor that Wendy, a medical retiree, couldn't afford on her own. Cascades Presbytery and her congregation, First Presbyterian Church of Ashland, Oregon, also contributed.

Wendy had to step away from full-time ministry in 2000 due to Trigeminal (trahy-jem-uh-nl) Neuralgia (noo-ral-juh), a severe chronic pain disorder. It soon became apparent that any full-time employment was out of the question. She has worked in parish ministry, on a presbytery staff, and in campus ministry at Southern Oregon University. She now serves in a limited part-time role as a parish associate at First Presbyterian, Ashland.

"Rosie goes to church with me on Sunday morning, and the church has embraced her presence and her function," Wendy says. "She's welcome at any event."

In fact, Rosie's friendly demeanor has helped Wendy build relationships with parishioners. "She broke down some barriers I didn't know were there," Wendy observes. "She wags not just her tail but her whole body. I don't take offense when people greet her and then say hello to me."

Rosie's companionship also helps Wendy cope with her chronic pain condition. Rosie's warm personality provides comfort, but her presence in Wendy's life also keeps Wendy more fit and engaged with the world. Walking her helps Wendy get exercise and interact with other dog owners and neighbors. Wendy says otherwise she tends to drift into seclusion when her pain becomes intense.

One half of your gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering goes to the Presbyterian Board of Pensions Assistance programs to benefit people like Wendy. Over the years, it's helped hundreds of current and retired church workers and their families in financial need. The other half of the Christmas Joy Offering receipts benefits Presbyterian-related racial ethnic schools.

The Christmas Joy Offering afforded Wendy not just help with everyday life, but increased peace of mind. "There is security knowing that Rosie is going to be there," Wendy says. "She's going to be there to alert me when I need alerting."

LET US PRAY:

Caring God, We pray for faithful church servants who find themselves in challenging circumstances. Tune our ears to hear their needs and turn our hearts to respond to them with compassion and generosity. Amen.

Menaul School's academic excellence, diversity, and values inspire achievement

Mari Duran is a happy seventh grader who wants to be a judge when she grows up. Right now, however, she is enjoying life as an honor student, a cheerleader, a volleyball player, and a budding actress at the Presbyterian-related Menaul School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Mari did not coast to the achievement she is now experiencing. She was born to a drug-addicted mother and taken directly from the hospital into foster care. Her maternal grandmother, Debra Duran, gained custody four months later and eventually adopted Mari.

Debra, a widow, vowed to care well for Mari, teach her moral values, and afford her a good education. When the time came to choose a middle school, she found Menaul School's mission reflected her goals for Mari.

"It provides a good education and they teach values, so it's not just me teaching them at home," Debra says. "She's learning them at school; she's also learning about Jesus and about God."

Debra likes the diversity of cultures, races, and ethnicities Mari experiences at Menaul. It is one of the Presbyterian racial-ethnic institutions supported by gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering. The schools receive half of the offering's receipts, while the other half goes to help current and retired church workers and their families who are in need.

Mari, whose ethnicity is Native American and Hispanic, is among the 60% of Menaul students who come from racial-ethnic groups. Mari has no reluctance to recommend Menaul to prospective students. "It's a great school," she says. "If they're worried about their studies, the teachers will be with them. There's diversity like they have never experienced in any other school. Overall, it's wonderful."

Debra sees Menaul offering her granddaughter opportunities she never had. Debra grew up in an impoverished family and had to leave high school before graduation. She earned her GED and attended college later in life, and now sells real estate. But Debra enjoys thinking about Mari attending prom, taking college preparatory classes, and selecting a college. While Mari still has much time to choose a career, she's clear why, at this point, she wants to be a judge. Her ambition stems not from a desire to dispense justice, but from a longing to help people resolve problems. Demonstrating a precocious understanding of the judicial system, she would like to preside in family court. "I want to help people and families work things out," Mari explains.

The critical funding from the Christmas Joy Offering enables Presbyterian racial-ethnic schools to provide Mari and students like her opportunities to overcome obstacles and excel. Your generous gift will help these schools continue their transformative ministries.

LET US PRAY:

Transforming God, Thank you for young people who pursue ambitious dreams and for opportunities to help them achieve those dreams. Help our racial-ethnic schools as they nurture dreams and as they encourage students to reach their God-given potential. Amen.

Ever wonder what your gifts to the Christmas Joy Offering support? Hear from the people whose lives you've helped improve.
