

We can HELP!

Hosting mission co-workers

Are you ready to connect with PC(USA) mission co-workers around the world? Presbyterian World Mission wants to help. Following are some frequently asked questions that will help frame a visit.

What type of events should I arrange?

Be creative. Think about what your congregation likes. But also think outside your congregation. Consider your presbytery, the ecumenical churches in your area, the civic community and the community at large. Then try to be strategic. The mission co-worker is there to share, educate, and connect in as many ways as possible, but not to just be “kept busy.” Put the mission co-worker to use and use him or her wisely. Some example events are:

- Sunday school and worship
- Prayer groups
- Potluck supper
- Prayer breakfast
- Bag lunch in a business area
- Presbyterian Women meeting
- Mission committee meeting
- Keynote speaker at a mission fair or presbytery meeting
- An interview with a local radio station or newspaper
- Book club
- Mission fair
- The Jaycees or Rotary Club
- Interfaith dialogue groups
- Clergy Bible study
- Vacation Bible school

How do I send the invitation?

You can email mission.live@pcusa.org at the World Mission office or you can email the mission co-worker directly. You will find his or her email address listed on our website profile pages by searching by name or country at pcusa.org/missionconnections. For a list of mission co-workers in the United States for the next few months, click the link “To learn more about mission speakers.”

How should my congregation/presbytery prepare for the visit?

Once you have the logistics settled, begin publicizing the event. Send out an email blast to members and community friends. Invite other organizations or churches that might be interested in attending as well. Look on the mission co-worker’s webpage (simply run a search for that person’s name at pcusa.org/missionconnections). There you will find biographical information, a description of her or his ministry, links to blogs (if applicable), and links to letters the mission co-worker has written. Consider using the most recent letter as part of your newsletter or e-news.

Do not wait until the visit to begin praying for the mission co-worker and her or his ministry and partners. Immediately add them to your prayer group’s list. Lift them up in the weekly pastoral prayers. Ask Sunday school classes to spend a few minutes each week prior to the visit (and after) in silent centering prayer preparing their hearts to receive the message the mission co-worker will bring. Find a song in the language of that area and prepare the children’s choir to sing it as a worship introit or welcome to the mission co-worker. (“Jesus Loves Me” has been translated into almost every language.)

What do I do after the visit?

Follow up begins before she or he leaves. Make sure to give the mission co-worker important email and/or mailing addresses. You will begin to receive quarterly letters. Ask for specific prayer requests. Consider adding the mission co-worker to your mission budget. Commit to pray for his or her work in worship at least monthly for the next year. Share your own prayer requests. Send birthday and holiday cards. Start early on planning the next visit or arrange a Skype follow-up conversation for six months later.

What funding is involved in hosting a mission co-worker?

The hosting presbytery or congregation typically absorbs the travel and hosting cost of a visiting mission co-worker (detailed below). This allows for as many opportunities as possible to be together – learning, growing, praying, sharing.

Costs involved in hosting a mission co-worker

Travel costs:

- Airfare or mileage within the U.S.
- Luggage fees
- Parking fees or transportation to the airport
- Food during travel

Hosting costs:

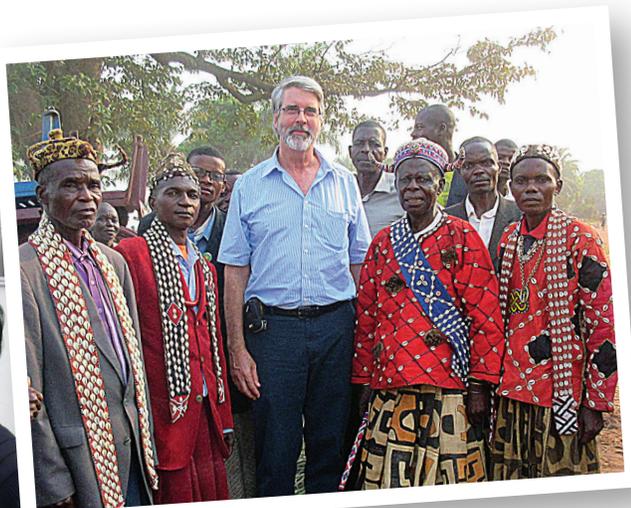

- Food during travel and while with the host
- Local transportation
- Lodging (either with a host or in a hotel)

Please note that no honorarium is expected for current mission personnel, so if you usually pay a guest preacher, those funds might be available for the above costs.

My church cannot afford the travel cost. What options do we have?

We can help! World Mission wants to encourage you to meet our mission co-workers and to hear their stories. We ask you to provide local transportation, food and housing for the mission co-worker, and we will cover travel costs for the mission co-worker's first visit to you. This way, you can get to know each other without worrying about travel expenses.

If you met with a mission co-worker on a previous visit to the United States and want this mission co-worker to pay another visit, we ask that you pay travel expenses as well as hosting costs. If you are concerned this will be a financial burden on your church, consider introducing the mission co-worker to another church in your vicinity. If this congregation agrees to host the co-worker, World Mission will cover the mission co-worker's travel cost to your area. Or, consider gathering multiple congregations together for an event. If you include at least one congregation that has not hosted the mission co-worker, his or her travel costs will be covered by World Mission. In this way, the invitation to enjoy time with our mission co-workers is shared widely, and more people learn about ways to join in these vital ministries.

For more information about hosting a mission co-worker

Destini Hodges
Presbyterian World Mission
mission.live@pcusa.org
(800) 728-7228, x5075