My name is Katie Hastings. I grew up in Tokyo, Japan, as a missionary kid and moved to Princeton, New Jersey, in middle school. I have spent the past four years at Hobart and William Smith Colleges in Geneva, New York, studying psychology and economics. I am going to be spending the upcoming year in Peru working as a Young Adult Volunteer (YAV).

Something that I've always been passionate about is traveling and learning from different cultures, and that is what excites me most about this amazing opportunity.
