

Reba Balint

Select Language

Powered by Google Translate

Support Reba

Read Reba's Blog

My name is Reba Balint. I am 22 years old and, in May of 2016, I graduated from Flagler College in Saint Augustine, Florida, with a major in religious and philosophical studies. College brought on a lot of growth spurts for me, providing challenges and opportunities I would have never otherwise known. I have worked in a plethora of jobs and lived alongside amazing people. Currently, I teach middle school English/language arts, and am trying my hardest to cultivate God's love in my classroom. In the same way, I hope to see awesome works and miracles as I journey through Austin, Texas, on my YAV year. One of my favorite quotes is from an insightful medieval philosopher, Saint Anselm, who mentioned that to be the 'best' child of God one must have a "faith [which is] seeking understanding"; To have the courage to ask the tough questions and to find answers and to explore your relationship and your faith with God. This has always been important to me. I hope to take this attitude and expand it while I am serving.