

Caitlin Camper

Select Language

Powered by  Translate

Support Caitlin

Read Caitlin's blog

My name is Caitlin Camper, and I just graduated from Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas, where I received my Bachelor of Arts in religious studies with a minor in anthropology. I'm originally from Birmingham, Alabama, but have since moved to Little Rock. I can be a pretty hard-core introvert but talking with and meeting others is one of my favorite things. Other favorites include morning coffee, hiking, running, flowers, social justice, handwritten notes, board games and a good book. Lately, I've been discerning my call to service and how my faith plays a role in that. I often feel and witness God through my interactions with others, and it is my hope to share the same love God has shown me to everyone I encounter. The desert is a magical place and I'm eager to share this next year of service with a new community in a new city!